Monthly summary

April was characterized by acute geopolitical tensions between the United States/Israel and Iran, with strong traffic restrictions in the Strait of Hormuz and oil prices exceeding $110 a barrel.

The ECB President Lagarde confirmed that she does not foreseen any immediate rate hikes and declared herself attentive to economic conditions, with inflation rising to 3.0% due to rising energy prices. The Federal Reserve follows the same policy, leaving rates unchanged, leading to a wait-and-see phase with a cautious message from the Federal Reserve, still led by Jerome Powell, whose mandate ends on May 15th. The nomination of his successor, Kevin Warsh, designated by Trump, is awaiting final confirmation by the Senate.

Despite political tensions, optimism is growing in equities market, supported by a possible resolution to the Middle East conflict and the boost from earnings releases from American big tech companies. Among others, Alphabet, Microsoft, Meta, and Amazon stand out, closing the first quarter with sharply rising profits and incremental announcements of investments in artificial intelligence. Facebook is the exception, losing 6% on the stock market despite beating revenue expectations, penalized by the massive investments in AI planned for the rest of the year, likely perceived as reckless by the market.

The rotation in favor of US technology is boosting the performance of the S&P 500 and Nasdaq. Emerging markets continue to show strong growth, with the MSCI EM index closing the month as the best-performing global index.

Greater stability for bond markets after the strong movements in March. Rising inflation is keeping government bonds under pressure, which are suffering from central banks' neutral policy. The corporate sector has seen a partial tightening of credit spreads, with the European iTraxx Crossover recovering from its March highs. The overall picture remains delicate, however, with investors awaiting upcoming geopolitical developments and future guidance from central banks.
